About Price Western

Founded in 1976, Price Western Leather Co. Ltd. is one of Europe's major manufacturers of leather and synthetic security equipment. We are clearly focussed on innovation and customisation to provide the very best quality goods at competitive prices.

Flexibility is key to our success - we continually customise our designs to meet customers' specific needs and are able to provide low quantities as well as mass-production. Our products are manufactured in Somerset and sold both throughout the UK and worldwide, through a network of distributors and agents in Europe, the Middle East, Asia and Australia.

Quality

Our commitment to quality is, in part, demonstrated by our ISO 9001 QA certification, assuring that our internal processes are streamlined and efficient. One result of this drive is the high level of customer satisfaction and client retention.

We are equally committed to improving the skills of our workforce through on-the-job training and in February 2009, signed up to the "Skills Pledge" (an initiative of the Learning Skills Council).

Experience

The experience of individual staff members is a key element of our business, many of our staff have been with us for over 15 and even 20 years. Such highly skilled individuals exemplify the company values in the drive for quality and sense of responsibility. We are proud of our heritage and the craftsmanship that we retain. Our experience in both design and production assures every client that our designs become cost-effective, fit for purpose and practical items.

Innovation

Over 40 years' manufacturing, we have learnt the absolute importance of innovation: innovation lies at the heart of our operation with product requirements and production methods continually evolving. Our innovations include the Ergonomic Belt, a range of holsters and accessories for the Taser X26 and Taser X2 as well as Sentinex - a bespoke material which combines the finish and durability of leather with the flexibility and cost effectiveness of 1000 Denier nylon.

All our innovations answer a client need and sometimes predict them. We also look to innovate in our design and production, continually looking for 'a better way' to operate.

How we work

Our day-to-day operations are managed using order and production management software. We monitor the performance of our teams on a weekly, monthly and quarterly basis and staff are involved in the setting of their own targets to ensure that each member of every team understands the significance of their role.

Good teamwork is essential to our continued success and we aim to be as flexible as possible as an employer to maintain this. We take our role as an open, flexible employer seriously and our team of home-workers, working to their own requirements, provides an essential backup to factory production.

We have market-leading ISO14001 certification and we are continually looking to reduce the use of the more harmful chemicals and solvents in our production. We have brought together our innovation and experience in this context to produce our Principles of Green Design which we use as guidelines for all our operations.

A Responsible Member of the Wider Community

In a broader perspective, PWL strives to be a responsible member of the community, both in terms of local organisations (supporting charities and local school events, for example) and our impact on the environment.

Principles of Green Design

The design team at Price Western Leather (PWL) provides a core function of our business, creating new products to respond to customers' needs. In addition to this, existing designs are continually evolving in response to new working practices and new materials.

The ultimate aim for each design is to produce the best possible product, in terms of its function and the specification from the client. From our manufacturing side, we have the additional aim of designing a product that can be produced efficiently both in terms of financial cost and the ecological impact of production.

We use our Green Design Principles as a basis for design and development work, the aim is to guide decision making in the design process to favour the best ecological solutions and to build on the work carried out for the ISO 14001 certification.

Design for durability and longevity

Due to the security and proprietary aspects of our finished products, recycling in the traditional sense is not always applicable. The best option is clearly to design products that will last for a significantly longer time. Over the lifetime of a product, the energy and resources consumed are far, far lower than those that may be involved in replacing or recycling materials.

Design out the hazards

Many of our products require the use of dyes, solvents and varnishes which traditionally have included high levels of hazardous chemicals. We attempt to reduce the effect of these chemicals at 3 stages:

1. Reduce the use of all chemical processes where possible
2. Replace hazardous chemicals with less- or non-hazardous alternatives
3. Dispose of all chemicals responsibly and appropriately

Design out the waste

In our attempts to create the best products, we should aim to design products that clearly meet their specification, without need of extraneous production processes or 'gimmicks' for the end-user. In doing so, the manufacture of each product should become more efficient, product usage should be user-friendly, and product life should be increased.

Design in the best materials

With a wide range of raw materials coming into the business, we continually assess our inputs in terms of their cost, quality and sustainability. Whenever possible we favour the sustainable and 'green' suppliers and materials. Equally, within the design process, we try to favour the use of sustainable materials and ecologically-efficient processes.

Design in multiple use, modular products

Whilst a high number of our products are designed specifically to do a single task (in the best way possible), we try to design products that will re-use existing tools, processes and materials. At the same time, we can plan for cutting to be done on existing machinery with individual cutting tools - avoiding wherever possible the need for new machines.

Ergonomic Belt

Ergonomic Belt

The Price Western Ergonomic Belt has been designed to radically improve the comfort and physical impact on police and security users.

Foam panels around the body distribute the load evenly and comfortably. This means that users, particularly those with lower back problems, are able to maintain excellent mobility while carrying a significant weight of equipment.

Following feedback and feature requests from users in the UK, we released the Mark II Ergonomic Belt in 2015.

Key updates include an increased belt stability which comes from improved contours and a new inner face material.

Belt equipment is carried on 2 lateral panels. Each panel is split into 3 separate 'bays' which have their own press stud fasteners.

Any standard belt equipment can be carried on the Price Western Ergonomic Belt and we recommend our Sentinex range of holsters and equipment pouches for its lightness and security of hold.

For further information on the Ergonomic Belt, or our range of Sentinex equipment carry options, please contact us using the details below.

W2170 Taser Holster

4 W2170 Holster with Removable Cover

The W2170 Holster evolved from the W984 model with feedback from UK Police Forces and their specific requirements.

One of the most requested feature is the Anti-Arming Clip to improve carrier-safety.

The W2170 also features a removable cover flap. This flap is removed or attached by 3 press studs and affords either easier access to the weapon, or improved protection.

As standard, the removable cover includes a 'Taser' badge in silver on a black patch.

5 W2170 Mollé Attachment

The W2170 features attachments for the Mollé standard allowing the holster to be easily deployed on a wide range of load-carrying vests.

6 W2170 (cover removed)

With the cover removed, the finger-break is revealed as well as our proprietary Anti-Arming Clip, which automatically forces the weapon into safe mode when holstered.
